KEY FINDINGS

Flagrant platform policy violations went unchecked.

A YouTuber who repeatedly threatened violence, including suggesting Meghan Markle, Duchess of Sussex, should be strangled to death, wasn't removed from the platform.

A popular channel helped foster misogynistic and dehumanizing opinions toward women, and YouTube's algorithms helped promote the channel.

Multiple channels with millions of views were dedicated to publishing malicious and defamatory content about Meghan Markle, Duchess of Sussex. An average of 94.7% of the videos available were about the Duchess.

A network of 22 channels was monetizing content taken from numerous news outlets. Over 34,000 videos contained articles taken from news outlets and read verbatim without crediting the source. The 22 channels received a combined 441 million views.

SUMMARY

In Feb 2022, Bot Sentinel published a report that included findings about YouTube channels targeting Meghan Markle, Duchess of Sussex. We expanded our investigation to determine whether policy violations were prevalent on the platform.

We reviewed 29 YouTube channels and analyzed over 35,000 transcripts using machine learning and artificial intelligence to identify toxic language. We also manually reviewed nearly two dozen channels suspected of copyright infringement. Each of the 29 YouTube channels we reviewed contained multiple policy violations. For example, the "Trevor Coult MC" channel engaged in threats of violence, racism, transphobia, and other policy violations. Despite the many policy violations, YouTube didn't terminate the account after multiple reports.

We identified YouTube channels predominately focused on publishing malicious and defamatory videos about Meghan Markle, Duchess of Sussex. We discovered that an average of 94.7% of the videos contained malicious and defamatory content about the Duchess, and YouTube monetized each channel. One channel, in particular, mentioned Meghan Markle a shocking 6225 times. YouTube awarded that channel with a silver creator award for reaching 100,000 subscribers.

We uncovered a network of 22 YouTube channels using text-to-speech translation and voice actors to read news articles verbatim without attribution to the news outlets. The 22 channels received a combined 441 million views.

YouTube policy violations were commonplace, and YouTube allowed channels like Trevor Coult MC to operate unchecked for over 11 years. In some cases, the policy violations were so flagrant it seems implausible to assume YouTube wasn't aware of some of the violations.

This report will illustrate how egregious YouTube policy violations go unpunished and how YouTube rewards YouTubers who repeatedly violate its policies. It will show how numerous YouTube channels plagiarize articles from news outlets and monetize that content.

TREVOR COULT MC

Trevor's YouTube channel is one of the most toxic channels we reviewed when compiling this report. Trevor's channel is brimming with threats of violence, racism, transphobia, misogyny, and xenophobia. In one video, Trevor stated, "Germans aren't good people. Don't give a [_] what anyone says." Trevor's videos have received nearly 18 million views, and YouTube allows Trevor to monetize his channel.

Trevor doesn't restrict his toxic rhetoric to his YouTube channel. He is a frequent guest on multiple channels, where he continues to violate YouTube policies. In a video titled "Live Real Talk with Emz & Trev 7pm Uk time," Trevor mocks Meghan Markle's children and claims "one has a [_] eye defect, and that's why he's not on any photographs." In the same video, Trevor suggests Meghan Markle should be strangled to death.

THATUMBRELLAGUY

Misogynistic and anti-feminist content was readily available on the platform. One such channel, "ThatUmbrellaGuy," helped foster misogynistic and dehumanizing opinions toward women. His latest victim is Amber Heard, and he published 128 videos about the actress. When we analyzed the transcripts, we discovered ThatUmbrellaGuy mentioned Amber Heard over 6100 times.

"She's got those psycho eyes..." "She looks crazy she looks crazy..." "She's a nut..." "She's she's disgusting..."

SINGLE-PURPOSE HATE CHANNELS

An area of focus for us was YouTube channels devoted to publishing malicious and defamatory content about Meghan Markle, The Duchess of Sussex. These problematic channels often use deceptive titles, descriptions, and thumbnails to avoid scrutiny from YouTube's moderators. Still, after further analysis, an average of 94.7% of the videos contain malicious and defamatory content about the Duchess.

Not allowed on YouTube

Accounts dedicated entirely to focusing on maliciously insulting an identifiable individual.

DECEPTIVE PRACTICES

YouTube channels focused predominantly on a single identifiable individual, will often use misleading thumbnails and ambiguous video titles to avoid scrutiny from moderators. The Sue Smith channel employed similar deceptive tactics after YouTube terminated and then reinstated the channel earlier this year. Although many videos use thumbnails of landscapes and celestial objects, the videos are primarily about Meghan Markle.

COPYRIGHT INFRINGEMENT

During our research, we received a credible tip regarding several channels monetizing content taken from news outlets. Upon further review, we discovered a network of 22 channels with over 34,000 videos, many of which contained the content of articles taken from news outlets and read verbatim without crediting the source. In addition to plagiarising news articles, unscrupulous YouTubers downloaded full episodes from a popular podcast and reuploaded the content to multiple channels. The 22 channels received a combined 441 million views. It was one of the most egregious cases of copyright infringement and plagiarism we have seen to date.

Note: We have included four examples of copyright infringement per channel, but thousands of violations exist.

CONCLUSION

YouTube has become a breeding ground for hate speech, misogyny, racism, homophobia, transphobia, xenophobia, and targeted harassment. YouTube is being weaponized against women and marginalized communities, and YouTube's algorithms routinely recommend harmful content to its users.

An endless barrage of videos that promote misogynistic and anti-feminist views flood the platform, and the propagation of harmful content on the platform is extremely alarming. It is disturbingly easy for anyone to create a channel that can then be used for nefarious purposes, and YouTube incentivizes its creators to publish content that often violates its policies. Problematic channels that are reported are routinely allowed to remain on the platform while still being monetized.

In addition to harmful content, widespread copyright violations are often unaddressed. Thousands of YouTube videos contain content taken directly from news outlets from around the globe, and YouTube monetizes that plagiarized content.

Unless YouTube is proactive at removing harmful content, problematic channels will continue to flourish on the platform and use it to propagate content prohibited by YouTube's policies. If YouTube enforced its current policies and implemented stricter monetization protocols, there would be a significant reduction in harmful content.

Channels with 60% or more of their content focusing negatively on an identifiable person should be strictly prohibited. At the very least, YouTube should demonetize these channels to remove the financial incentive to continue producing malicious content.

YouTube must also do better at safeguarding publishers' content. Channels shouldn't be allowed to steal content from publishers, read that content verbatim in a YouTube video, and then be rewarded for using the stolen content.

If YouTube continues failing to moderate harmful content, protect women and marginalized communities from abuse, and safeguard publishers' content, we will need more robust regulations and penalties to address this burgeoning problem.
